LLOYD, A GOOD NAME.

That a new town will soon spring into existence on the Prince Consolidated side of this camp is a foregone conclusion and it has been suggested that it be given the name of Lloyd, in honor of William Lloyd, one of Pioche's esteemed citizens and prominent mining operators.

The Record heartily seconds the motion and while those having in mind the promotion of a townsite may have other ideas about it; at the same time we believe that this means of perpetuating the name of Mr. Lloyd in the manner stated would instantly meet with popular approval.

To him above everyone else is due the rapid advancement of that portion of the district. He has a "nose for finding ore" and has been dubbed the "Old Ore Hound of Pioche." There nothing very pretty about the appellation surely; but it is expressive and fits the case.

It was "Bill" Lloyd who made the Prince Consolidated the mammoth mine that it is today. His burrowing into the earth over that way and unloading the treasure boxes which had been hidden for many ages is what turned the tide towards the Prince side. He was followed by John A. Kirby and associates, who rounded out the Pioche King; then came Geo. Cox, who gathered together that magnificent territory included in the domain of the Golden Prince, Gold & Silver Prince companies, interesting with him men who rank high in the financial world; then there is Frank B. Cook and others, in the Point property which formed the basis of the Pioche Metal Mining company.

The DemJohn is another good mine upon which some energetic development work is being done. Several others might be mentioned which have come forward since "Bill" Lloyd began to tap the rich resources of the Prince mine.

Yes, Lloyd, would be a good name for the new suburb of Pioche. We expect to see a place over there with a population of from 1,000 to 1,500 people, and a place growing into a bustling city of from 5,000 to 10,000, with in the next year. The boom is on, and this camp is going to grow.

ACTIVITY IN BUILDING.

The building activity in Pioche continues and the Record is informed by Mr. H. D. Jackson of the Pioche Construction company and A. L. Kimball, that the outlook is very favorable for an active season in building lines.

A good many new homes are in course of construction in various parts of the city and many others are in contemplation to meet the demands of a steadily increasing population. The establishment of a new town on the Prince Consolidated side of the camp will make more business for the lumbermen and builders; while improvements planned at many of the mines will also cut an important figure in this year's building operations of Pioche and vicinity.

As we have said before, Pioche is going to grow. It is growing now and it will soon move forward by leaps and bounds. We have the greatest mineralized district in the world; while the judicious investment of capital is just as certain to bring enormous returns as the sun shines. There is not another mining camp in Nevada which offers the opportunities that Pioche does. Gradually this is being found out and why shouldn't the camp grow?

It is deplorable that the Nevada, Utah and Ohio-Kentucky companies can't agree on at least a division of the properties owned jointly by them. But then that doesn't stand in the way of Pioche going ahead with leaps and bounds this year. Nothing can stop a boom here now.

Pioche is on the move. If you don't believe it just take note of the activity on the Prince Consolidated side of the camp.

Those who advertise in the Record get the business. Have you noticed that?

The Failure.

Keir Hardie, one of labor's ablest representatives in the British parliament, at a dinner of bootmakers in New York spoke of success.

"Success, they tell us," he began, "comes from aiming high. I think it often comes from aiming low, from aiming within one's scope."

"Suppose," for instance, that the average reporter, aiming high, devotes his life to the composition of Shakespearean tragedies or Miltonic epics—do you think he would succeed? Ah, no."

Mr. Keir Hardie shook his head and smiled.

"Let us then aim," he said, "at what we stand some chance of hitting. It is they who strive to leave footprints in the sands of time who, alas, most frequently get stuck in the mud."

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Character is crystallized conduct. It takes a big heart to guide little folk.

He who fears has his greatest foe within.

He is greatest who gives most of himself to men.

Tact is simply taking pains to keep touch with people.

Most men have charity enough to cover their own sins.

Paying the price of purity is the best prayer for paradise.

The touch of tears is often the closest cement of hearts.

No man ascends to heaven on whom heaven has not descended.

Following your appetites is turning your back on your ambitions.

The best legacy any man can leave his children is willingness to work.

There are a lot of people trying to light the world by painting their lanterns.

The dead man has a great advantage over a lazy one, because he eats nothing.

The saddest thing about some is that they never are touched by the sorrows of others.

Lots of sour people would be tolerable if they did not prate so much about their honey.

It is not the fact of the salary but the motive in the service that stamps the hireling.—Chicago Tribune.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It's a wooden leg that cannot be pulled.

Real charity doesn't employ a publicity promoter.

Every man's troubles are the worst—from his point of view.

Cheap notoriety sometimes costs more than the other kind.

And there are girls who dislike being kissed—by the wrong fellow.

Few men are as wicked as they like to have women think they are.

A woman may have an old hat on her head and a new one on her mind.

Every old widower realizes that the whole world loves to laugh at a lover.

The average man is what he is because some woman thinks that's what he ought to be.

Perhaps nothing is calculated to worry a pessimist more than the noise made by people who shout for joy.

Although a married man may never have been a witness in a lawsuit, he usually knows what it is to be cross-examined.—Chicago News
